A question

A person was sentenced to imprisonment in 2017 because of a bounced check, and the sentence has not been implemented so far. Can the check be paid, or has the prison sentence to be implemented

The Answer:

3 years must not pass after the verdict. During this time, notifications should be made every period for the accused person to renew the status of limitations. It is also possible to make a warning to the police station officer and the head of investigations to quickly implement the verdict

After the three years have passed, you have no choice but to resort to the civil court to demand the payment of the check.

Procedures for foreigners to establish companies in Egypt:

The first question asked by foreign investors wishing to invest in Egypt is "what are the procedures for establishing a company?" through which they can invest their money in Egypt. The question is answered as followed:

Documents required for the establishment of companies of foreign persons in Egypt:

- 1) A copy of official authorizations from all partners (the original is to be viewed). In the case of an establishment through an agent, the official authorizations should stipulate the right of the agent to establish companies and sign the contracts of incorporation in front of the real estate entity. If the agent is a partner of the established company, the phrase "to contract with oneself and others in the establishment of companies" should be added by official authorization.
- 2) A copy of personal identification (valid and clear) for the business partners, with the possibility of issuing a request to see the original. For Egyptians, this would be the national Identity Card, and for foreigners, the passport.
- 3) A Copy of the lawyer's registration card "Agent" of the Bar Association. It is required for the lawyer's and primary attorney's registration date to be valid.
- 4) Security inquiry document for foreign partners and a copy on a CD.
- 5) A Copy of personal identification of the agent (valid and clear), (the original is revised): * A national number for the Egyptian, * A foreigner's passport.
- 6) The approval of the competent authority if any of the company's purpose requires obtaining a special approval in accordance with the provisions of the applicable laws (prior approval).
- 7) If there is an in-kind share at the time of incorporation, a report on the evaluation of the in-kind share is submitted by experts from the profession regulated by law, according to the nature of each share.
- 8) If companies are established to operate under the public free zones system in accordance with the provisions of Investment Law 72/2017, the same aforementioned documents shall be submitted in addition to a document proving the approval from the General Authority for Investment and Free Zones prior to incorporation. The approval shall be issued by the Board of Directors of the free zone in which the project is to be established.

Self-determination:

The principle of self-determination was at the heart of the Treaty of Versailles which was signed after World War I. It included the creation of new nation-states in Europe, thus replacing the Austro-Hungarian Empire and the German Empire. Later, this principle constituted the basis for anti-colonial demands, meaning the call for the abolition of European colonial control over Africa and Asia.

MOHAMEK

The Egyptian Minister of Interior issued Decree No. 1330 of 2023, amending provisions to the executive regulations of the Traffic Law issued by Ministerial Decree No. 1613 of 2008.

This decision sparked controversy over the idea of licenses for carts and carriages, despite even the "carrot" in Egypt was "licensed" at the beginning of the twentieth century.

Your Legal Advisor in Family Matters... Addiction is Considered a Cause of Divorce for Harm:

The mother-in-law instigated her divorce from her son, after her failed attempts to fix his condition, and her attempt to enter a specialized clinic for the treatment of addiction, but the desire to recover was not of interest to him and he continued the path of addiction, until his life-partner decided to move away from him.

The addiction does not only put the life of the addict in danger but also the lives of his wife and children. Because addiction often leads to impulsive behavior, there is a higher risk for criminality, states of agitation and the loss of the ability to control oneself as well as an increased risk to abuse family members or steal from them.

The plaintiff stated her fear that addiction might not be a sufficient reason to be considered as damage before the court. Your legal advisor for family issues (Your Lawyer Platform) responds, that addiction is a strong cause of harm, and in fact it constitutes the most common cause for divorce, immediately after partner-violence

Wives often ask how to prove that they have suffered harm because of the husband's addiction before the court.

The wife H.G. reported about problems with her husband who suffers from addiction from Heroin and Astrox. She is one of the thousands of wives sharing the same experience. What is new and beautiful about her case is that the husband's mother supported her to save her and her children. She encouraged her to seek divorce due to the harm inflicted through her husband's addiction. The mother-in-law encouraged her to continue her life after the divorce in order to marry another person who may give her a better life.

Your Lawyer's Platform answers that evidence is constituted through medical reports documenting the medical condition of the addicted spouse, as well as the testimony of witnesses. In these cases, the wife can prove the harm from the husband before the court and obtain a divorce ruling. Consequently, she deserves all her rights, including the dowry, and other types of alimony.

It is therefore necessary for the wife and mother to take the decision of separating from the husband to avoid further harm to her and her children, in an attempt to recover and live a new life together with her children in peace
